Treasure hunt at Garland Park

Garland Ranch Regional Park continues to grow in popularity and usage — a haven of how-things-oughta-be in a world where few things are as they "oughta be." Regional Parks Director, Gary Tate, works day and night actively involving people for the benefit of the passive-use park. This in addition to his up-front job of juggling statistics, money, paper, red tape, and a number of smaller pieces of land belonging to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Parks District.

Members of many organizations such as Audubon Society, Boy Scouts, Equestrian Trails Inc., Girl Scouts, Native Plant Society, and Sierra Club, to name just a few, feel a spiritual kinship with the canyons and forests of the 541-acre Garland Ranch. And the park has benefited from their attentions.

This Sunday, Nov. 14, California State Horsemen's Association Region 10 will hold a "Treasure Trail Ride" in Garland Park — a most appropriate setting. Horses and riders will assemble at the Trail and Saddle Club leaving there at 9:30 for the ride over the Mesa Grande to the Visitor Center. Estimated time of arrival there is 10:45.

A page of clues, each one leading to a numbered tag hidden on the lower reaches of Garland Park, will be handed out. The numbered tags may be turned in for prizes but until then the finder won't know whether he's found a number worth a candy bar or worth a roasting turkey.

The clues are in the form of poems as befits the treasures of Garland Park. Could you find a hidden treasure if directed like this?

Some folks come to walk their dogs

Some folks come to jump the logs.

Up the road to the right, Jump the biggest log in sight

If you fall into the sand,

You'll find a treasure near where you land.

Not great poetry you say?

Too easy? You don't fall over jumps anyhow? Could you find this treasure in the lower meadow?

An old saying to improve a child's mind:

"As the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined."

Thirty years ago with a mighty stroke,

Someone bent this little oak:

Leaned it right over,

With its head in clover.

But with ambition still alive,

Upward again it did strive. Where it bows to the earth so low,

There's treasure in its boughs or on the ground below.

Aha! Every Feedbag reader that's ever ridden Garland Park is jumping up and down screaming "I know that tree! I know where it is!" And those readers that haven't ridden Garland are vowing to do so.

But those two clues won't do you any good. The committee rejected them in favor of a dozen others that were easier or harder to find. Best you show up Sunday to get the real clues. The entry fee is only $4 for adults and $2 for children and that includes a post-ride barbecue back at Trail and Saddle Club. Non-riders are welcome to participate.

We asked treasure hunt organizer (and president-elect of C.S.H.A. Region 10) Frank Spicer about young children participating in the trail ride. "They're going to feel disappointed if they're not old enough to read the clues," Frank said genially. With that kind of just-for-fun attitude, Sunday's Treasure Trail Ride should be a great outing for the entire family. Safe for little kids on Shetlands... and how many horse activities are there?

Horselovers who prefer a more sedentary weekend should attend the two-day horse show Saturday and Sunday sponsored by the Carmel Valley chapter of the California Dressage Society. Grace and elegance will be typified by the dressage riders and their superbly trained horses at the semi-annual show held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Moiso in Los Ranchitos between Carmel Valley Road and Los Robles. The show begins at 7 a.m. and runs until about 5 p.m. but the best part of the day will be around noon when a champagne brunch will be available.

To take one's ease in a beautiful setting... sipping champagne... watching gorgeous horses doing intricate things... gads, isn't that some sort of Classic California Scene? Bring guests. Make an occasion of it.

CHS band plans trip to Mexico

The Carmel High School Band, which has received superior ratings in concert in various band festivals, has been invited to the Sixth Annual Invitational Mexican Band Festival to be held in Mexico City this May.

Some 50 band members and chaperones are hoping to attend the festival for five days this spring and fund-raising plans are already in full gear to acquire the $300 apiece needed to finance the trip.

The fund-drive kick-off will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. with a short parade and a 2 p.m. concert in Devendorf Park.

According to band director Henry Avila, the Carmel Band has been invited to many festivals in the past, and has attended some in this country, but this is the first time the band has left the United States.

The Mexican visit will be from May 1-5 and will include a day spent playing in the festival itself, a tour of the city, and a tour of the Museum of Anthropology. Other tours and a parade might also be on the agenda.

Avila says that Carmel High School has a very active group of band parents in its working committee who have already done much of the preparation for gathering funds.

A haunted house held in the bandroom, Halloween will help to finance the trip, as will a flea market held two weeks ago.

Coming up will be a holiday potpourri gift sale to be held Nov. 20 and 21 in the High School cafeteria, from 10 to 5 p.m. A fashion show is being planned for this spring.

Guest groups will also perform in money-raising concerts next year, beginning with the Chatman College Chamber Orchestra on Jan. 14 at 8 p.m. in the Carmel Mission Basilica. The California State University at Long Beach will present concerts of their Symphonic Orchestra in mid February at Sunset Center, and their Symphonic Band will perform at 2 p.m. on March 27 in Sunset Auditorium.

An adult dance will be featured in February with the high school jazz group.

At the same time, the band will be soliciting sponsors, or band boosters. Names of sponsors will go into concert programs. Categories will be: booster, $1; individual sponsor, $10; section sponsor, $15; podium sponsor, $50; band sponsor, $100.

Avila, who has been with Carmel High School for 10 years now, was recently elected to the presidency of the California Music Educators Association. He also belongs to the American School Band Directors Association, of which he is a past president.

Band president this year is Marty Wise, vice president is Mimi Ruiz, secretary is Jill Janic and treasurer is Debbi Lorenz.

Carmel High School

High enrollment causes crowded classes

By MICHAEL BUTOWITSCH

Enrollment at Carmel High School is greater than the facility was designed to hold and the problem manifests itself in two ways — crowded classes and overloaded teachers.

Over 70 classes at CHS have more than 30 students enrolled and several teachers face more than 150 students in a single day. The science department alone has 200 more students enrolled in classes this year than last, an increase which Dan Stevenson, CHS principal, says could not have been predicted. Figures compiled by Stevenson show the problem is no less acute in the mathematics and social science areas.

Though Stevenson says, "I don't think we're at a state where we're going to do the kids a disservice," he sees the problem as severe enough to warrant hiring additional staff and increasing the number of class sections offered.

In a special study session of the school board last week, Stevenson presented the class size data and requested the equivalent of 2.8 additional teachers for next year, enabling the school to offer 14 extra classes. He also suggested hiring an adult aide for the math department.

But, Stevenson was faced with opposition from Harris Taylor, superintendent of schools, who says the desired solution is too expensive for the district and points out that there's little if any room to house the additional staff anyway. Taylor also says the class size problem will correct itself as projected enrollments decrease.

Taylor presented data to the board indicating that average class size at the high school is only slightly higher than the state average and about 1.7 pupils higher than in comparable districts. The current average class size at CHS is roughly

Teacher's loads are also heavy

27.2. In districts with one high school and comparable enrollments the average class size is 25.5. Hiring enough staff to bring the average class size in line would cost the district $40-50,000 annually, Taylor says. Additionally, Taylor points out that enrollment at CHS varies greatly from the fall to spring semesters and where the average class size for September was 27.6, by June the average will drop to 24.6.

Hiring extra teachers to ease the load in certain areas is not, as the board quickly learned, an easy solution. Aside from the obvious expense, there simply isn't enough room at the high school to house them, according to Taylor.

The high school, with a current enrollment of nearly 1,200, was built to ideally hold 800 students. During the course of a normal six class period day, Taylor says there are only nine classrooms available that aren't currently used and the majority of these are specialty rooms not suitable for all classes. Even now three science classes and one section of math are scheduled in a drafting classroom. Though a seventh class period is scheduled it is minimally used and may not be adequate for additional scheduling due to a variety of conflicts.

Averages, as board member Elizabeth Bell points out, can be misleading especially when hidden in the figures are classes undeniably over-enrolled. She says the English and math classes with high enrollments particularly concern her. She feels the quality of education diminishes as enrollments increase.

How much of a direct effect large class sizes have on the level of education cannot, says Stevenson, be tangibly demonstrated. But, he adds, it's obvious that the more students in a class the less time teachers have to spend with them individually. "Intuitively," he says, "we hope and we think and we feel that if teachers spend more time with students they'll be better off."

Jim Kennaday, a science teacher at CHS, says the good students will succeed under adverse conditions, but the marginal students need a teacher's time and will suffer without individual attention. Kennaday teaches physics and chemistry. His chemistry classroom has 24 laboratory stations but enrollments in each of his sections are higher than that. Even though he can solve that dilemma by squeezing students in between lab stations, he can't solve the limitations of time.

Stevenson adds that teachers at the high school level have to worry about class control. A learning atmosphere has to be created, he says, and that can be a definite problem the larger a class is. A freshman class of 30-40 students can be hard to control, Stevenson points out, and the more energy a teacher has to spend to gain control the less he has left to spend on actually teaching.

The crucial variable in determining acceptable class sizes is the ability of the instructor, Stevenson says. Some teachers can easily handle large classes and some can't. In addition, Stevenson says certain subjects can be taught to larger

High school Ag class takes to the fields

Dick Willard thinks education is great, and he's all for seeing a high school student go on to college. But the important question to him is: "How do you make a living?"

Willard teaches at Carmel High School but he was not formally trained to be a teacher and it's hard to catch him in a classroom. He spends his mornings with his Regional Occupation Program class, out planting groundcover or doing park maintenance. His afternoons are spent out behind Carmelo School with his agriculture class, growing vegetables or tinkering with the reluctant old tractor the class uses to plow the ground.

There's very little in Willard's classes that could be called "typical high school," and that is apparently the way it was meant to be. When Willard was hired two years ago, one requirement was to find a teacher from business — not someone who had spent his life teaching from books.

The idea with both Willard's ROP and agriculture classes is not to turn out scholars, but adults with a saleable skill. That's just what's been happening.

Around 60 per cent of Willard's ROP students have found jobs in fields related to their training upon graduation. Although Willard has not kept similar statistics on his agriculture classes, he suspects the percentage there is high too.

The ROP classes are based in Carmel High School, but are actually Peninsula-wide classes aimed at young people trying to gain the skills needed to get a job.

Ages range from 16 to 23 in Willard's classes (juniors and seniors, on up to high school graduates).

Willard's ROP group is getting training in a wide variety of jobs, all centered around landscaping, gardening and park work.

To give an example of the type of jobs performed by ROP students: last week they spent two mornings planting ice plant along the top of Carmel Beach's new seawall, just below Scenic. Ice plant cuttings were taken from further up the beach and placed at intervals along the new bank to protect the area from erosion.

Now Willard is offering to put his class to work laying out and setting up a Parcourse — a sort of jogging exercise course — in the city's Flanders-Doolittle Park.

Other jobs have included working with rangers at Pt. Lobos and Big Sur State Parks, working with fishing guides, and doing work for the park service out of Gonzales.

So far, jobs have mainly been with public agencies, but Willard is looking for private individuals or corporations to give his classes training opportunities too.

The agriculture class, which Willard conducts in two hour blocks, every other day, meets out in the portable classrooms off Schulte Road in Carmel Valley, behind Carmelo School. The classes are affiliated with the Future Farmers of America, but only six out of 30 students in one class, for instance, are from farms. The rest simply have a strong 4-H interest.

Swiess-Regan wed

The rich tones of Indian Summer matched the flowers and the attire of the wedding party when Sandra Marie Swiess of Carmel and Edward James Regan of San Jose exchanged vows in an afternoon ceremony performed at Carmel Mission Basilica by The Rev. Raymond Bucher of Oakland, cousin of the groom, who was assisted by Fr. Coz, Santa Clara. Timothy and John Regan, brothers of the groom, were the altar boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Swiess of Carmel Valley are parents of the bride who is a graduate of Carmel High School and the University of Santa Clara. She is presently an executive manager trainee with Macy's in San Francisco.

Also a graduate of the University of Santa Clara, the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Reagan of Walnut Creek. He is employed as a design engineer with National Semi-Conductor in Sunnyvale.

Three dimensional daisies trimmed the cap sleeves of Sandi's floor length organza gown of Empire design and her chapel length train. The high neckline and bodice of the gown was trimmed with Venice lace. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow roses, white orchids and babies' breath.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD J. REGAN cut their wedding cake at the reception held at Rancho Canada. Following Polish tradition, wedding festivities began at 5:30 on Friday and ended on 5:30 the following Monday. The bride is the former Sandi Swiess.

Sheryl Swiess of Carmel Valley was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the bride's cousin, Laura Barnes of Los Angeles; the groom's sisters, Mary Lou, Rosemary, and Elizabeth Regan of Walnut Creek; and Margo Bisaccio of Santa Clara. The attendants and the flower girl, another of the groom's sisters, Tarie Regan, wore identical gowns of chiffon print-apricot roses and yellow daisies — over apricot taffeta. The long dresses of halter design were worn with halter capelets, with miniature clusters of dried flowers in their hair. They carried bouquets of rust-yellow and white mums.

The groom, fathers of the couple, and male members of the wedding party wore candlelight tuxedos with brown velvet collars and cuffs, and cream colored ruffled shirts. The groom's brother, Robert Regan of Walnut Creek was the best man. The ushers included the bride's brothers, Shawn and Scott Swiess of Carmel Valley, the groom's brother, Denis Regan of Walnut Creek; Edward Geiger of San Jose; and Victor Santana of Berkeley.

Vocal selections were by Lynette Evoni accompanied by guitarist Chip Evoni — both of San Jose.

The couple followed the three-day Polish wedding tradition beginning with the rehearsal at 5:30 on a Friday followed by the rehearsal dinner hosted at the Hatch Cover by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Regan.

Sandi made her departure for the Mission from the family home on River Road to the festive music of the Polish Wedding March. She was accompanied by members of the wedding party and the following family members and close friends: Mrs. Joanne Sears; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Klemek, and Sammy; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Busick, Mike and David; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Crain (sister and brother-in-law of the groom from San Francisco); the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Johnson; the bride's aunt, Miss May Swiess of Phoenix, Ariz.; her uncle, Tom Swiess of Honolulu, Hawaii; and Mrs. Joan Barnes, the bride's aunt, of Los Angeles.

At the reception held in the Rancho Canada Golf Club, Mrs. Sam Klemek and Mrs. Tom Ocampo assisted with the Polish ceremony of unveiling the bride and "putting on the apron."

Mr. and Mrs. Regan returned last weekend from their honeymoon on the islands of Kauai, Maui and Oahu. They are now at home in Santa Clara.

Among other guests from out of town were the grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Robert James of Fresno; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coluccio of Seattle, Wash.; and the groom's sister, Marylou Regan of Moraga, Calif.

The pre-nuptial parties given for the couple were hosted by Mrs. Richard Dick and Mrs. Ralph Erion in Garzas Canyon; a shower given by Mrs. Laura Barnes and Sherrie Swiess in Carmel Valley; Miss Sici Hodges entertained in San Jose; and Mrs. Michael Crain, and Marylou, Dolly, and Mimi Regan in Walnut Creek.

Carmelo carnival

The annual Halloween Carnival at Carmelo School was again a great success! Many families shared the Halloween dinner fare and remained to enjoy the festivities arranged by the Parent Faculty Club supported by the Mid Valley Co-op Nursery School.

"An old oak leaf cluster" to Mid-Valley Safeway, Monte Mart, Martin's Market, and Hacienda Feed and Fuel for their assistance. Prizes for the drawing were contributed by Brinton's, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Warner of Carmel Rancho Liquors, Gallery Graphics, Thunderbird Book Store, Valley Hills Nursery, Rancho Canada Golf Club, Wolters Market, Mid-Valley Veterinary Hospital, Chez Danielle, Pat's Mid Valley Beauty Salon, Yavor's Deli, Mid-Valley Chevron, Mid-Valley Richfield, The Pampered Hamper, Hollow Hills Succulent Farm, and the Flair in Northridge Center. Kathy Maggiore, Parent Faculty Club secretary, also expressed the appreciation of all the lucky winners.

The club would also like to extend their thanks to EVERYONE who helped to make this a memorable and fun evening; Alyce and Ray Foster, Donna and Bill Lewellen, Ron and Brigitte Fuerstner, John and Pat Bernardi, Monty and Sandy Awamleh, Joe and Kathy Maggiore, Therese and Joe Guzaitis, Bill and Elizabeth Sosic. Also Bill Charland and Peter Glod for their special efforts; and Mrs. Anita Silver and Julie and Jerry Steele for smooth organization of the event. The Haunted House was the spookiest ever thanks to Nick and Roz Zanides and Gary Verga who was the wondering Dracula. Lynette Burge did a fantastic job as always with her face painting.

All proceeds from the carnival are pledged to the building of a playground for the children of Carmelo with construction to begin soon.

Concert in the park

Residents will have an opportunity on Sunday to see and hear the Carmel High School Band, recipients of a recent invitation from the Mexican government to participate in the Sixth Annual Invitational Mexican Band Festival, which will be held in Mexico City in May.

The Padre Band the the director, Henry Avila will parade down Ocean Avenue in Carmel at 1 p.m. on Sunday followed by "A Concert in Devendorf Park" and bake sale at 2 p.m.

With the approval of the school board of the Carmel Unified School District and the Carmel City Council, the Sunday event is the formal kick-off for a series of fundraisers with proceeds ear-marked to transport the Band south of the Border.

Sunday's event will also be a musical salute from members of the Band to their director, outgoing president of the Central Coast Music Educators Association, who has been named president of the 5,000 members of the California Music Educators Association.

behind the L225's design.

is a rugged 24hp, fuel-injected diesel tractor built to take a full line of implements including those for mowing, plowing, cultivating, hauling, digging, and front-loading. This versatility makes the L225 the perfect back-up and support tractor for the farm and a year-round performer when it comes to industrial and general contracting applications.

The L225's powerful 3-cylinder diesel engine makes light work of the heavy jobs a garden tractor just can't handle. Yet with the L225 you get the fuel economy and great maneuverability of a compact machine ideal for farming smaller acreage, landscaping, and grounds maintenance.

THE DANCE AND TWIRL CLUB of Carmel has launched its Third Annual Candy Sale and seems to have found a pleased customer in Dan Yurkovich, who heads the Carmel Unified School District's recreation department, sponsors of the organization. Lori Larsen of Carmel and Jackie Garrett of Carmel Valley assure their benefactor that extra boxes are fine for Christmas giving.

Mrs. Dale Buche, Parent Club president, and Richard Murphy, Student Council president, will be assisted by the Language Arts Department (students may shop during that period); the Media Department, aiding with publicity; the Yard Department, responsible for posters; and the Home Economics Department, helping with some of the baked goods.

The books are new — both hard and paperbacks — and any would make ideal Christmas gifts.

Proceeds go toward student needs as requested by the various departments and it is hoped the community will support this, the first, of Parent Club benefits.

Extra Messiah singers sought

Singers in the community who wish to join the Hartnell-Community Chorus in this year's performance of Handel's "Messiah" are asked to register in the Admission's Office of Hartnell College before Nov. 15.

The concert will be held in the Hartnell College Performing Arts Theatre on Sunday, Dec. 12 at 4 p.m.

Four rehearsals in preparation for the concert will be held in the Choral Hall (P.A. 125) under the direction of Dr. Vahe Aslanian on Nov. 15, 22, 29 and Dec. 6 from 7:00-8:30 p.m. and the dress rehearsal will be on Saturday, Dec. 11 at 2 p.m.

Harvest Fair

A must on your list when setting out to visit the numerous holiday bazaars in the weeks before Christmas is the "Holiday Potpourri" sponsored by the Carmel High School Band in the CHS cafeteria, Saturday and Sunday, November 20 and 21 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Henry Avila, Booster Club chairman, with student co-chairmen Gail Uyeda and John Watts have put together seven departments including a stitchery booth, a boutique, the kitchen booth, next to new, the 5 and 10, and dollar booth, and the bake shop.

Students and parents have worked for many months on the arts and crafts projects under the direction of Mrs. Avila. The fund raiser is an annual event, but this year the proceeds will go toward the bands' goal — a trip in May to Mexico City to the Sixth annual Invitational Mexican Band Festival in which the Padre Band has been invited to participate.

CHS Band potpourri

Kitchen and sewing machines have been buzzing and the Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula will once again present its "Harvest Fair" in Fellowship Hall on Friday, Nov. 19 and on Saturday, Nov. 20, from 10 to 4 p.m.

Featured will be the usual array of delicious candies, jellies, pies, cakes and cookies, fresh walnuts and hot German donuts and coffee served throughout the day. Christmas decorations, gift items, toys, dolls, aprons, and fluffy bubble pillows will be on sale.

The ladies invite you to "come early — stay late — and do some of your holiday buying at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, next to Rancho Canada at the mouth of Carmel Valley."

High school Ag class...

As with the ROP classes, the agriculture classes cover an enormous variety of subject matter — so much that students attend for two years in a row and find almost no repetition.

"In fact," Willard says, "we don't review. We're just going too fast."

This year at the Monterey County Fair, Willard's classes had a grand champion lamb, a reserve champion steer, and a number of champion breeding projects. The great part of the course, and possibly the thing that accounts for the classes' enthusiasm, is the fact that class projects continue to go on at home, especially the breeding projects.

But classes cover more than the basics for finding your way around a farm. In studying horses last week, for instance, the class learned the names of the breeds, the parts of a horse, the gaits for show horses and the care and feeding of work horses, breeding, shoeing and riding. In short, the class covers all aspects of agriculture, giving preparation for anything from riding stables to dude ranches to farms. It is more of an agriculture-related class than strictly a class for those who want to take part in the feeding of America. Willard says that many of his students, for instance, are interested in landscaping or forestry.

"What I'm teaching," he explains, "is basically how to run a business."

Willard himself was involved for many years with his father's dairy and still "keeps his hand in." He sold feed for a while for Ralston Purina, but then went back to his family's 300 milking cows in the northern part of the state.

But Willard says he likes people and when this teaching job came up he took it. He likes the farm but sighs, "The animals just don't talk to you."

THE CLASS TRACTOR works sometimes, and sometimes it doesn't, but the agriculture class gets experience fixing farm machinery even on the bad days.

The Dance Theatre of OM is a troupe of dancers, musicians and artists under the guidance of Ishvani Hamilton who have developed a distinctive and unique repertoire reflecting the arts of India.

Their program includes traditional dances from Bharata Nytyam, the Yogic technique and a series of fables from the Panchatantra that utilize Mudras, the language of gesture of the ancient East.

The fables and dances are presented with costumes of the period and are combined with a sense of the modern theater.

Tickets to the performance are $2 and are available through the MPC Community Services office, 373-5522.

The folk music format is still intact at the Hatchcover and there's a semi-new Peninsula act playing at the popular Carmel Rancho nightspot on a Thursday through Saturday basis through Nov.

I say that Deaf Ted is "semi-new" because you've seen two of the Ted — Steve Euhler and David Lewis — as Shiloh on the local music scene for the past two years. Now they've teamed with Scott Getline and are in the rough primary stages of forming a sound that is low key electronic folk music — a-la the late Loggins and Messina — yet adds a touch of funk via Scott's flute, piano, banjo and sax. Blend Scott's varied impulses with Steve's fine lead vocals and guitar and dulcimer work and finalize it with Dave's up-tempo bass lines and occasional keyboard work and you have the foundation for an entertaining evening at the Hatchcover.

To be perfectly honest, Steve and David's original compositions are musically sound yet a bit bland; but, perhaps this is due more to rearrangement of the music with the addition of Scott. Scott, in turn, pulled out an original "Sax Fiend" which was both clever and appealing especially when he jumped out into the Saturday eve crowd and played a lick or two for each table. And when he couldn't get one table's attention, he jumped on top of an adjoining chair and played some notes into their ears.

Deaf Ted has a while to go yet to establish the musical tightness they can pull off. Until then, prepare yourself for an evening of "anything goes" as the trio slowly blend in a dulcimer and moog.

By the way, the answer to the obvious question is "the name of the group came from a John Lennon poem."

Guitar designer Steve Klein was in town this past weekend checking out a crafts get together at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and wearing a smile of satisfaction. Steve had just delivered a new guitar to Dan Peek of America. Peek was about to head out for an America recording session in Hawaii and was happy to receive his ax.

Klein's been working on guitars since high school. He couldn't find any satisfaction in the electric guitars that were on sales in his area so he built one. He's been at it ever since.

Steve feels that the electric guitar has been the salvation of the instrument. "The guitar has been saved through amplification. With it, the musician can get more tone out of the strings," says Klein.

As for the construction of his guitars Steve has this to say: "I select the woods I use for sound and beauty of grain as well as their capacity to maintain a high tolerance level. Often pieces within the same tree differ so radically that only a small percentage of high quality hard and soft woods can be used to create a fine instrument. I have often used spruce from Europe and Alaska as well as redwood from California for the guitar faces. For the backs and the sides I have carefully selected rosewoods from India and Central and South America as well as walnut from Oregon."

If you're curious to hear what a Klein guitar sounds like and can't wait for the next America l.p. pull out your Joni Mitchell collection and find the "Don't Interrupt the Sorrow" cut. Those are Steve's feelings coming out of Mitchell's play.

'Chicken Wing' 'Meat' hard to get

By SEAN McLEOD

The third production in the Monterey Performance Group's repertory cycle is called "Chicken Wing." The title is apt: a wing has less meat than most other parts of the bird, and it is harder to get at.

The first half of the show resembles a small fraternity-sorority review. It is a series of skits and

"blackouts," ranging from interpretations of Dorothy Parker to simple charades. (The charades, quite well done, seem to be the only example of the much-heralded improvisations.)

It gets off to a slow start — the introduction is cutesy "us-showbiz folks" — but eventually generates some interest and a few laughs. Toward the end of the act, however, things start degenerating. There is an elaborately staged but tediously adolescent scene about a Jewish-Australian-Aborigine-Dancer. The act ends with some juvenile bathroom humor, which is tasteless without even achieving the dignity of being offensive.

The material is generally of the type — but not always the quality — of "Mad" Magazine. This may be intentional, since the MPG is set up partly for touring, and junior (Community?) colleges are a logical target.

The second half of the show is significantly better. It is taken from Pierre Delattre's "Tales of a Dalai Lama" — an excellent and very theatrical use of traditional themes in a modern idiom. The fables and parables do have some meat, and therefore some real entertainment value, along with the wry humor.

The ensemble playing, which is MPG's specialty, enhances the material and the production concept. The act opens with a well-staged "The Dancing Master of Kung Fu," and continues through several other surprising and entertaining tales. Especially haunting and creatively staged is "Seven Puffs on a Cigarette."

The strongest element of the show is, unsurprisingly, the controlled and lively physical acting. Director Fred Weiss is a master of dramatic choreography, and he leads his performers into some impressive group interaction. He also makes clever and effective use of a few simple props — notably some large pieces of colorful cloth, sort of Procrustean bedspreads.

The weakest element in the show — a comedy — is the glaring lack of either comics or comedians. There may be comic talent in the cast, but the overall intensity and discipline of the production effectively stifle it. It is usually replaced either by blatant hamming or by brittle gestures and Lawrence Welk smiles. Only in the charades was there any appearance of spontaneous joy, although in "Dalai Lama" the actors did seem to be enjoying themselves.

The cast is the same MPG company already seen in "Woyzeck" and "Under Milk Wood" (with which "Chicken Wing" is alternating in repertory). In this show a couple of the more interesting performers are rather underused. The costumes are imaginative and the lighting is deplorable.

There is a lot of talent and much promise in the group, and it should be quite successful — at least artistically — once it becomes a little more comfortable in its selection of material. "Chicken Wing" will be performed again on Friday, Nov. 12, at the Community Theatre, at eight o'clock.

by David Cole

The conflict which has long existed quietly between the Carmel Sanitary District and the Pebble Beach Sanitary District, came out very much in the open Monday night during a long, controversial meeting of the Carmel board.

In a letter drafted by board chairman Don Kirk and sent to the PBSB, the CSD board charges that Pebble Beach feels it is entitled to a greater volume of sewage treatment than it deserves. The letter further indicates that little progress has been made toward the revised CSD-PBSB agreement after approximately eight months of work. Board member Charlotte Hurst added that she had been given the impression that the Pebble Beach board felt any connection ban that might be made at a future time would not apply to them.

Half the time spent at each board meeting is taken up quibbling with the Pebble Beach board, said CSD member Ken McGinnis after several hours of discussion between the board and PBSB board president Elmer Schreiner. A number of problems have been ironed out, McGinnis said, but the boards are really no closer to agreement than they were two and a half years ago.

In the letter to Pebble Beach, Kirk made the controversial proposal that set off most of the charges and counter charges by suggesting that, "the best approach, in my opinion, would be for the two districts to combine."

The districts show little prospect of such a combination, at least in the near future, but Kirk and others would like to aim for that goal eventually. Most of the arguments Monday night stemmed from the fact that Pebble Beach is regarded as being a responsible part of the CSD by that district.

Pebble Beach has its own collection system, but must rely on the Carmel Sanitary District (per order of the Regional Water Quality Control Board) for sewage treatment. Pebble Beach accounts for somewhere between one-quarter and one-third of the CSD's two million gallons per day of sewage.

But Pebble Beach regards itself as having limited responsibilities when it comes to Carmel's troubles. Carmel's current troubles are two-fold: an ASBS order for Carmel Bay has resulted, and will continue to result, in expensive plans and facility changes; and the capacity rating of the CSD plant has been reduced due to stiffening water quality controls.

The agreement which Carmel has had with Pebble Beach has not been revised since 1969 and a lot of effluent has flowed through the outfall since then. CSD has been trying formally for eight months to draw up a revised agreement with Pebble Beach with little success.

In his letter to the PBSB, Kirk admits that agreement in principle has been reached on operation and maintenance costs (they will be allocated on a flow percentage basis), but says: "Beyond these items there has been little or no progress."

One problem lies in the fact that PBSB representatives feel they are entitled to one MGD of sewage treatment since they paid for one-third of a plant rated at three MGD. However, the recent reduction in rating of the plant places it at 2.4 MGD capacity -- leaving Pebble Beach with .8 MGD.

Now, in order to bring the plant up to a four MGD capacity, the CSD is estimating local costs at $750,000 to $875,000. PBSB, according to Schreiner, is willing to pay one-third of the local cost in return for an entitlement of one and one-third MGD of treatment (a third of four MGD), but Kirk and other CSD board members believe this arrangement impractical. For one thing, Kirk points out, Pebble Beach now uses only .5 to .6 MGD of treatment. He proposes Pebble Beach pay a quarter of the local cost and receive a quarter of the currently rated plant capacity.

But a better solution, he maintains, would be to combine the two districts.

Another problem arising out of CSD plans is the funding of the area-wide facilities plan about to begin. The facilities plan will take an overall look at Pebble Beach, Carmel Highlands, and the Carmel Valley watershed. The CSD board would like to see Pebble Beach pay one-quarter of this local cost and the county pay one-quarter. Pebble Beach, in effect, feels that it is not their problem since they are only concerned with Pebble Beach. They indicate willingness to pay the cost of planning for Pebble Beach only.

Carmel board members also worry about cash flow, insisting that PBSB pay their share as the expenses come in, not wait until the granting procedure is completed.

The county board of supervisors has already, in effect, turned down the idea of the county's financial participation, but at Monday night's meeting the board agreed to a three-member steering committee for the area-wide facilities plan consisting of one representative from the county, one from Pebble Beach, and one from the CSD. This, it is hoped, will turn the supervisor's vote around.

4-H project day set

Electric, home arts, home furnishings, leathercraft, mini-gardens and wood-working 4-H members will have an opportunity to participate in a Multi-Project Day, Saturday, Nov. 13.

The set-up time is 8:30 a.m., and the meeting will be from 9 a.m. to noon. This workshop will be at Monterey Park School, 410 San Miguel Avenue, Salinas. 4-H junior leaders, leaders and parents are invited, also.

Ideas will be exchanged and demonstrations given. The young people will also get to make some items. An identification item, best project article, pencil and paper should be brought by each member.

Japan: people and customs

Japan, a country that has long been famous for its serene beauty, its unusual customs and the efficiency of its people, has a great deal more to offer to the rest of the world, according to travel-adventure film producer, Gene Wiancko.

Wiancko will appear in person to narrate his color film, "The People of Japan," as part of the on-going Explorama series at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 18 and 19 at the Sunset Cultural Center Auditorium in Carmel.

"The Japanese people seem to have an enthusiasm for living that I have not encountered before in my travels in other parts of the world. They seem to be constantly involved in numerous activities, which range from ancient ceremonial traditions to modern political activism," says Wiancko, who has produced three different feature-length films about life in Japan.

He spent a total of two years on location doing the photography for his current film. During this time, Wiancko met and married his Japanese-born wife, Hiroko. Their Shinto wedding ceremony is featured in the film. During the production of the film, he shot footage in Tokyo, Shirakawa, Kyoto, Mount Fuji, Hiroshima, Hamamatsu, Nikko, on the Inland Sea and in remote and rarely-visited areas on Japan.

"Most important to me," says Wiancko, "is the filming of people and getting a feeling of their life styles. People are what a place is all about." Much of his film deals with the life styles of various Japanese people.

Highlights of his film include the Takayama

Festival and the Gion Procession; the Shinto Fire Ceremony; the Cherry Dance of Kyoto; the Kabuki Theatre; Sumo wrestling; the tea ceremony, and the Meiji Shrine dances. The film also features an examination of the Sinto religion and of Western religions in Japan.

Reserved seat tickets are now on sale at Julia Marlowe Box Office in Carmel, and Abinante Music Store in Monterey.

THE GREAT BUDDHA of Nara from Gene Wiancko's "The People of Japan" shown as part of the Explorama film series on Nov. 18 and 19 at 8:15 p.m. in Sunset Cultural Center Auditorium in Carmel.

CET gala joins play and party

After an invitation from Children's Experimental Theatre director Marcia Gambrell Hovick to eat, drink and enjoy the play with gusto, the Young Actor's Guild of the CET presented Moliere's "The Forced Marriage" at a gala held in Monterey last Thursday.

Gambrell asked that the audience think of themselves as a 17th century audience, and interact with the play rather than sit "morgue-style" as has become the custom in today's theatre.

The audience dined both before and after the play on hors d'oeuvres brought by parents and CET board members. Mrs. Mary Schmidt was the general chairperson for the gala. She was assisted by Jim Goffard.

Performers in the play were Mike Dirk, Danny Harry, Kathy Hawkins, Charlie Houghton, Dave

chamber chatter

By JEANELLE KAMINSKE

Louie Gardner has often been called the unofficial mayor of Carmel Valley. He and his wife, Margy, own the Blue Sky Lodge at the corner of Poppy and Carmel Valley Road. They came here from Santa Barbara with their six children a little over 25 years ago, bought the five acres on the corner which contained a house and swimming pool, and added 15 motel units, which has now grown into 34 rooms. Louie grew up in Washington, D.C. (His brother, John, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is now head of Common Cause in Washington.)

Three children were born to Margy and Louie here in Carmel Valley, making a total of nine, which inevitably led to grandchildren (10 at the latest count), and they have become the Gardners' avocation now that son Roger (with twin sons, age five) is helping with the Lodge. This gives Louie and Margy a chance to get away to visit their family, which is now scattered around California, except for younger son Bill, who's still at home and wants to stay in Carmel Valley. He's studying to be a welder. Margy says Louie has served on most every Valley committee, board, group and work crew through the years, and has won many awards and honors for his work, including the Chamber of Commerce "Good Egg" Award. They don't plan to ever give up the Lodge because they enjoy the people who come back year after year. They are now remodeling, painting, adding new furniture and some kitchenettes.

Jim and Rose Poulos who own the Village Market, came here from San Francisco in 1965, because they wanted their two sons to grow up here in a relaxed country environment. They bought the market, which had gone bankrupt, and started remodeling, upgrading, and improving service. Sons Jim and Bob have helped their Dad in their spare time through the years, but don't plan to take over when Dad retires. Jim, age 23, is an accountant in Monterey and Bob is a senior this year at Cal Poly, majoring in computer science. Rose helps in the store two days a week, and spends her spare time in the Pink Lady program at the hospital and other community efforts.

Jim and Rose Poulos think Carmel Valley is one of the most wonderful places in the world. Not only do we have natural beauty, but the folks who live and work here just can't be beat.

The Carmel Valley Chamber Business Directory is about to go to press. This will be distributed free to everyone in the Valley, and will give the telephone number and area location of most all of the business and service organizations in the Valley.

The Pot Shop

Hannah Brehmer is the owner and potter at The Pot Shop, tucked back behind the swimming pool at the Carmel Valley Inn and Tennis Resort on Carmel Valley Road and Los Laureles Grade.

Hannah majored in ceramics and fine arts in college, and belonged to Peninsula Potters for six years. Her husband is Carmel City Attorney, George Brehmer. For a time Hannah worked at home, but soon found the need for more space, so she approached the owners of the Inn, and they gave her a "shed" in the back which is absolutely ideal for a potter's studio. Her children can join her and swim in the pool while Hannah works at her wheel. What could be better!

Among the many things offered for sale are hanging planters, dinnerware, goblets, vases, teapots and cups, candleholders, casseroles, pitchers and bottles. Later she will expand to decorative household items. Stop by soon and watch the Potter at work. Hannah is fun to know and her quaint shop is worth the trip. Open every day but Sunday and Monday from noon to 5:00, or call for a special appointment at your convenience: 659-4679.

classes than others without affecting the level of instruction. He maintains that classes have to be scrutinized individually and the subject in tandem with the instructor will determine the acceptable class size. By and large, he says, Carmel High has good teachers who can handle the heavy student loads. But, he would like to see the problem eased a bit with the addition of staff.

Bell sees a possible solution in dropping some elective courses currently offered and increasing the number of class sections in the basic subject areas. But, as board president Richard Wilsdon points out, Carmel has a comprehensive high school designed to offer a variety of electives as well as the basic subject areas. To drop electives, he suggests, would run counter to the school's purpose.

Taylor harks back to the age-old problem of desirable versus affordable. He says a budget study indicates that district reserves are going down and he questions priorities in light of decreasing enrollments in the future. With enrollments going down, Taylor says class sizes will also decrease until in 1980 classes will average 24.2 pupils. This will happen, he declares, without the expense of hiring additional staff.

But today's students, particularly in the science area, are losing some valuable "hands on" experience according to Stevenson. "If you're going to teach lab skills," he says, "it's nice to get the kid to a lab."

George C. Dibert was born in 1903. He chose never to actively seek exhibition of his work and was known widely for his advertising work with J. Walter Thompson Co. Dibert defeated Bill Tilden in tennis

Scouts hike historic trail

Ten Scouts from Carmel's Troop 3 recently hiked the Fages Trail, qualified for patches and medals for their accomplishment and shared a bit of early California history at the same time.

The Fages Trail, located within Wildcat Canyon and Tilden Regional Parks near El Cerrito, is sponsored by the Order of the Arrow (honorary camping society). The trail is named for Pedro Fages, a Spanish military leader, who played a prominent part in the history of Spanish California. Fages was second in command to Gaspar de Portola during two expeditions from San Diego to Monterey in 1796 and 1770. He was also Commandante of Monterey and later explored the country North of Monterey on two occasions. Fages accompanied by Father Juan Crespi and a party of soldiers reached the site of the present trail on March 20, 1772 and were the first white men to visit the region. Later in his career Fages was made governor of California and served in that capacity approximately nine years.

Scouts, who hiked the 10.4 mile trail, were Van Crego, Carl Still, Darren Bellati, Colin R. Cooper, Daniel Hu, Vlad Lewis, Shawn O'Neil, Bradley J. Hanzelka, Mark T. Olson and David A. Hyatt. The Scouts were accompanied on the hike by their Scoutmaster Arthur V. Crego and Mrs. Janet W. Crego, Troop committee member.
